You may possess it, if you will purify and invigorate your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
E. M. Howard, New York, N. Y., writes:
"I suffered for years with Scrofulous humors, after using two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Found great relief. It has entirely restored me to health." James French, Atchison, Kans., writes: "To all persons suffering from Liver Complaint, I would strongly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with a disease of the liver for nearly two years, when a friend advised me to take this medicine. It gave prompt relief, and has cured me." Mrs. H. M. Kidder, 41 Dwight st., Boston, Mass., writes: "For several years I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family. I never feel safe, even without it. As a liver medicine and general purifier of the blood, it has no equal." Mrs. A. B. Allen, Waterbury, Vt., writes: "My youngest child, two years of age, was taken with Bowel Complaint, which we could not cure. We tried many remedies, but he continued to grow worse, and finally became so reduced in flesh that we could only move him upon a pillow. It was suggested by one of the doctors that Scrofula might be the cause of the trouble. We procured a bottle of

CHESTER A. ARTHUR DEAD

THE EX-PRESIDENT DIES VERY SUD-DENLY IN NEW YORK.

Apoplexy Resulting From the Fasting of a Blood Vessel the Immediate Cause of His Death—He Passes Away Without Pain—A Brief History of His Life.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Ex-President Chester A. Arthur died at his home, No. 125 Lexington avenue, in this city, at 5 o'clock this morning. He had long been suffering from Bright's disease, but the immediate cause of his death was apoplexy, resulting from the bursting of a blood vessel, which caused paralysis of the whole right side.

As soon as the news of Mr. Arthur's death was made public many flags on public and private buildings were placed at half-mast.

BUCKLE ON LEXINGTON AVENUE.

Mr. Arthur lived at No. 125 Lexington avenue for twenty years or more. A stroke of cerebral apoplexy, sudden but not wholly unexpected by the attending physicians, terminated his life. The stroke, coming in his sleep between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, and he did not rally therefrom. His death was painless—the slow going out of a turned down candle—and for hours before the end came he was unconscious of his surroundings.

His son and daughter, his sister, his former law partner, Sherman W. Knevels, and his closest friend, Surgeon Rollins, were at his bedside. All reports to the contrary, Mr.
Arthur's health had not improved during his stay in New London six weeks ago, and at his return on October 1, he was no better than when he left the city. As time passed no permanent improvement came, and the physicians feared some such sudden stroke as the one to which he succumbed. In his enfeebled condition, even a light stroke of apoplexy would prove fatal to the one robust patient. But with the beginning of the present week a marked change for the better set in. Tuesday night he felt better and stronger than at any time since was taken sick, and commented hopefully upon the fact.

Ex-President Arthur at the time of his death was in his fifty-seventh year. He had been a widower for seven years, and leaves two children, a son and daughter, Chester Allen and Nellie.
The funeral will take place from the church of the Holy Rest on Fifth avenue, at Forty-fifth street, at 9 o'clock on Saturday morning, and the remains will be buried in the family plot in the Albany Rural cemetery.
Chester Allen Arthur was born in Fairfield, Franklin county, Vermont, October 5, 1829, and was the eldest of a family of two sons and three daughters. His father, the Rev. William Arthur, was a Baptist clergyman, who emigrated at the age of eighteen from New England to Canada. He was a man of prominence in his denomination, having been pastor of Calvary Baptist church in New York City from 1855 to 1863.
The president's early education was acquired in the schools of Vermont, and at the age of fifteen he entered Union college at Schuylkill, N. Y., graduating high in his class in 1849. During his college course he supported himself in part by teaching, and after his graduation he continued in that occupation for about two years, being for a time principal of the Pownal academy, in Vermont. Meantime he also devoted himself to the study of law, and, having saved a few hundred dollars from his earnings as a teacher, he set out for New York, where he entered the office of ex-Judge E. D.

Culver.
Having been admitted to the bar, he formed a partnership with his intimate friend, Henry B. Gardner, and settled down to practice, doing a good deal of legal work of success. Early in his professional career Mr. Arthur married a daughter of Lieut.
Herdson, of the United States navy, an officer who had gone down with his ship at sea, and whose widow was the recipient of a gold medal, voted by congress in recognition of his bravery. Mrs. Arthur died in 1880. Mr.
Arthur early in life took an active interest in politics as a Henry Clay Whig, and was a delegate to the convention at Saratoga which founded the Republican party of New York.
He also had a taste for the administration of military affairs, and before the civil war was judge of the Second brigade of the state militia.

When Edwin D. Morgan became governor of New York at the beginning of 1869 he appointed Mr. Arthur to the position of secretary of his staff, and he was afterward made inspector general, and then quartermaster general of the military forces of the state, an office which he held until the end of Governor Morgan's term, at the close of 1871.

In 1873 Gen. Arthur returned to the practice of law and built up a large business in collecting claims against the government.
On the 5th of November, 1871, he was appointed by President Grant collector of customs at the port of New York, an office to which he was reappointed in 1873. On returning to the practice of law, he continued to take an active part in politics, contributing materially to the nomination of Mr. Cornell to the governorship of the state. He was a zealous supporter of the claims of Gen. Grant to the Republican nomination for president at the convention of 1880. When the movement to nominate Gen. Grant was defeated, and Mr.
Garfield was nominated, Mr. Arthur was nominated for the vice presidency by acclamation.

He presided in the senate during the special session, which began on the 4th of October, with dignity and general acceptance. It was during this time that President Garfield received the shot which ended his life. While the president lingered in his illness, Mr. Arthur was present at his bedside, and when death was announced to him in New York by a telegram from the members of the cabinet, he expressed the wish that he would repair to Long Branch the following morning.

In accordance with the advice of his friends he took the train on the morning of New York before one of the judges of the state supreme court, at 2 o'clock on the morning of September 23. After visiting Long Branch and accompanying the remains of the dead president to Washington, Mr. Arthur was sworn into office in a more formal manner before the chief justice of the supreme court, on the 23d, and delivered a brief address in which he expressed his sense of the grave responsibilities devolved upon him. The same day he presided at the funeral of his predecessor.

A special session of the senate was called, to begin on October 10, for the purpose of choosing a presidential officer and confirming such appointments as might be submitted.
The members of the senate were requested to retain their places until the regular meeting of congress in December. Only Secretary Winston, of the treasury department, who desired to become a candidate for the senate from Minnesota, insisted on his resignation. Chief Justice Folger, of the New York court of appeals, who then presided, declined to accept the resignation. President Arthur finished his term of office in a manner most acceptable to the people.

At Washington.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The personal regard in which the late President Arthur was held in Washington was shown by the expressions of sincere sorrow at the news of his sudden death. The receipt of the news of his death was followed almost immediately by the mating of flags on the wings of the capitol, on the White House and department buildings, on the court houses and district court houses, and on the hotels, schools and private buildings. Soon after the receipt of the news of his death, the following telegram was sent to Mr. Arthur from the president of the United States: "The president of the United States and the cabinet are deeply grieved by the death of your father, and they are deeply sorrowful that you are no longer with us." The following telegram was sent to Mr. Arthur from the president of the United States:

ago with a portrait of the late President Arthur, which was a reproduction of the

A Poor Illustration.
"Don't know how many times three times ten is thirty," said a young boy, who was one of the best of broad cast cents, wouldn't three cost thirty cents? "Maybe so at your bakery, but we've a baker that gives three for a quarter,"—T. J. Higgins.

DR. STORRS FORTY YEARS.

CELEBRATING THE LONG LABORS OF A FAMOUS PREACHER:

The Inner Life of a Large and Influential Brooklyn Congregation Described—A Household Church, Not Over Wealthy, But Charitable and Harmonious.

REV. DR. R. S. STORRS.
NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The day is a memorable one in the history of the Church of the Pilgrim in this city, inasmuch as the Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs has completed forty years of pastoral work, and a grand reception is tendered him by his congregation in honor of their day and his own.

Dr. Storrs, who recently celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday, presents the appearance of vigorous manhood in the pulpit. His face, which is full, has few wrinkles. He does not use glasses, and his massive head is still covered with glossy brown hair, in which there are few gray streaks. His white side whiskers are in marked contrast with his hair. In the pulpit the stoop of his shoulders which long years of study have brought to the learned divine, is hidden under a flowing silken gown.

Dr. Storrs said it was natural he should make a survey of what the church had done in what it had done. Such a story could not fall of significance, for to him another anniversary might never come. The church was not simply a human society. It was to them the living and continuing household of Christ. It had always continued to be as it was at first, a household church. Its situation seemed to make it a church of families socially and religiously allied. When the congregation occupied the Academy of Music for a year and was near the various carling wanderers and were clustered into the Christian households, affording an interesting study in its history and producing very happy effects.

A certain reserve in his personality characterized this church of households. There had been no passion for publicity. It preferred to go without notice. In this no adverse criticism was implied of churches which pursued a different plan. This association of families was not wholly from New England, nor was the members of the congregation all descendants of the Puritans. English, Scotch, Germans and the natives of the north of Ireland and of Canada had been as happy in the church as the natives of New England. There had been two or three members of the church who had been trained in other churches, and who were trained in convents. All had dwelt together in mutual confidence and sympathy.

Compared with many other churches, the permanent characteristics of this church had been remarkable. There were still twenty families represented in the church who were there when he first stood in the pulpit. The present clerk and the present treasurer had each held his office for thirty years, and one man had looked after the church edifice for twenty-five years. The church had an impersonal consciousness of its own, and the essential self-propagating life of the church would continue when pastors should come and go.
The permanent and diffusive power of the life surpassed state and oak. The harmony had always been frank and courteous. Application of the church was not to the wishes of the majority, and there never had been a captious minority in the congregation. One honored brother had continued a deacon for forty years.

There had been no feud with other churches, and the democratic equality of the number had always been recognized. There had been a freedom from extreme denominational spirit. They had cast no slur and no suspicion on other churches, and had seen with joy the growth of other congregations. To church had been Congregational in order and evangelical in faith. Its conviction of the truth of the august and transcendent belief in which it was founded had never varied, and it had been unaffected by fugitive opinions. Lawyers, judges, engineers, editors, and all the professions of the city had been man had been drawn away by speculation it had been with pain to him and not with pride. To the congregation the resurrection of the dead was as certain as the stars in the sky. They accepted the scriptural statement of the judgment to come without a doubt. A world like this needed a faith with the thunder of divine authority.

Twenty years ago he had adopted the plan of not writing out public discourses, and he had found that the discourses were more energetic and direct thereby. While he had pursued various studies to avoid monotony, and had been his primary and inspiring aid to set up the Son of God in his proper lordship over the world. Except on some special occasions, as in the struggle for the abolition of slavery, and on the death of a man of some great man, he had limited his discourses to themes of spiritual significance.
He did not find that the Lord or His apostles ever entered into political discussions. He had preached chastity, temperance, honesty, abstinence from the impure associations of the world, but he had never sought to urge the pulpit for furthering his own opinions.

Dr. Storrs said that the church had not led a cloistered life, but had always been interested in outward activities and in the property and progress of the city, and especially in fostering liberal and humane institutions and advancing money for education.
The liberality of the church had been steady, and it was not an overstatement to place the annual contributions for philanthropy and Christian institutions at $20,000, although the church was not preeminently wealthy.

The music school, which had been established nearly forty years ago, and ten years afterward a beautiful chapel was erected in South Brooklyn at a cost of $65,000. It had been beautified and enlarged from time to time. There were now more than 500 children in its Sunday school, and a regular minister and from two to four mission teachers were employed. The total number of members who had joined the church since its establishment had been 2,444, 1,239 on letters from other churches, and 1,205 on confessions of faith. There were at present 998 members, about 100 of whom were marked absentees.

Dr. Storrs said that, with only one exception, he was the oldest Protestant pastor in active service in New York or Brooklyn. This showed how kindly he had been dealt, with and how great a conservative the society had been. Referring to the changes which forty years have wrought in Brooklyn, he said that at the beginning of his ministry the city had no water works, no city hall, no street railway and no telegraph communication. The present city hall square was a farm; there were no uniformed police, and sixty watchmen and night watchmen guarded the city. The assessed valuation of real estate was only $27,000,000, which was less than that of the First ward in New York. Prospect Park was a rough, dreary, malarious waste, and the union of New York and Brooklyn by a bridge seemed more incredible than a vision of the future. The church from the sky. Brooklyn was then known only as a dormitory for New York, and the desolate place on the way to Greenwood.

The changes in Brooklyn and New York in this period bewildered thought and almost baffled belief. The changes had come so large had been proportionately as great.
Moral and political life had been vastly enriched in power and promise. It was hard to comprehend in thought the changes which through which the world had passed in forty years. Dr. Storrs reviewed the changes in religious thought and feeling, and in the showing the strides which the evangelical churches had made in the United States.
The men, he said, who united to form the Church of the Pilgrim did not know of the first work, and their enthusiasm had been justified by its history. Of the twenty-one members of the congregation of the church twelve were still with them. Ideas did not die. The truth of God was subject to no mutation or decay.

In closing Dr. Storrs said he had received many flattering offers from other churches and colleges, but that the church had too strong a hold upon him to be broken, and he intended to remain until his public work was closed.

AN INDIAN BATTLE.

A Fight Between a Wandering Band of Indians and a Party of Settlers.

BISMARCK, Dak., Nov. 18.—A report has reached here of another fight between Sioux and Crow Indians, near Fort Buford. A band of Sioux, numbering fifteen, had attempted to steal ponies belonging to a band of Sioux, numbering fifteen, both parties being en route to Berthold to visit the Indians at that agency. The Sioux were surrounded at midnight by the barking of their dogs, and seeing the Crows leading their ponies away, they opened fire, and in a minute every Indian of both parties was striking and firing about the low sage brush in their regular style of warfare.

One Indian of the Crows was killed by the first volley from the Crows, and this made the fighting by the Sioux fierce and desperate. The Crows were routed after four of their numbers had been killed and two wounded, and the remaining fourteen were pursued about five miles. Returning to their camp the Sioux scalped and skinned the dead Crows, and passed the early morning hours in a spirited scalp dance. This was the second conflict between wandering detachments of these tribes during the past month.

A Huge Success.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 19.—Up till to-day the total amount taken in at seats for the season of opera at Music Hall had not reached $20,000. The success of the season, as the most brilliant ever given here, is thus assured. The present prospects indicate that there will not be a single seat unsold in the next Monday night for any opera. In view of this fact there is a great demand for an extra performance on Thanksgiving day for people living out of the city, and the extra opera of Aida, by Verdi, will be given with strong cast and full ballet. The railroads have taken an interest in this extra performance, and are to run special trains.

Death Heavens His True Name.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 19.—For several years past there has been about the docks a young man known among his fellows as O'Brien. Tuesday night he took lodging in a cheap lodging house on Ferry street. The next morning he was dead in bed. From papers found on the person it was learned that he was a native of Ireland. It was found that he had been living, while here, under an assumed name. His correct name was John Rusk, and he was the son of a wealthy Quebec merchant. It was discovered that Rusk ran away from home four or five years ago, soon after attaining his majority, on account of trouble with his family.

Another Foolhardy Undertaking.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Laurens M.
Donovan, thero of the Brooklyn and Niagara bridges, after declining $200 a week in the New York Times magazine, took a benefit last night at the Adelphi theatre. Donovan was tutored on jumping. Donovan is making arrangements to go through the Niagara whirlpool rapids on next Sunday in the barrel used by Potomac in his famous trip last summer. He expects to have a young lady accompany him, and they will be married at Quebec. It was announced that he realized $200 from the benefit.

A Monument to Rev. Hatfield.

RACINE, Wis., Nov. 19.—A corporation has been formed in Racine, Wis., for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a suitable memorial to the Rev. Mr. Hatfield, who died recently of cancer of the throat. The corporation is composed of City, Iowa, at the instance of a son whom he was active in presenting. The efforts of the corporation will be to raise funds for the purpose described.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.

ROSSER & MCCARTHY,
Proprietors.

FRIDAY EVE., NOVEMBER 19, 1886.

"PINK-EYE" in a mild form is said to be very prevalent among the horses of Louisville.

The net earnings of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad for the past six months amount to more than $600,000.

The New York Sun is bent on making Cleveland fire his Attorney General, Garland, and abandon his civil service policy.

The assessed value of property in Kenton County this year is more than $17,000,000, an increase of about $1,000,000 over that of last year.

In 1884 the Republican plurality in Pennsylvania was 80,000. At the recent election they carried that State by a little more than 5,000 majority.

The Common Pleas Court of Bourbon County will convene at Paris next Monday. There are 167 cases on the docket, 78 of which are new suits.

Lincoln's biographer, Colonel Ward Lamon, has recently won a big law suit at Washington, it is said, and will pocket the little fortune of $250,000 as his fee.

NINETEEN counties in this State have adopted local option within the past year, and at present fully five-eighths of the "old Commonwealth" is under prohibitory laws.

The Thomas Iron Company has contracted for all the steel rails it can deliver in 1887, and the Patterson Locomotive Works are refusing to take orders for engines under six months' delivery.

Two of the Republican candidates for Congress in Minnesota are Free Traders, one of them being Vice President of the American Free-Trade League. All Free Traders in this country are not Democrats by any means, nor are all Democrats Free-Traders.

COUNTY ASSESSOR JOHN R. BURGESS is engaged at present in listing the property in this city. We understand one taxpayer increased his assessment $18,000 over that of last year. The new revenue law, which requires property to be listed at its fair cash value, is having a good effect.

A SPECIAL from Pittsburgh says: "For the first time in several years there is no strike in Pittsburgh or the surrounding district. Every furnace, iron mill, glass factory, tannery, oleomargarine factory, foundry, cooper shop, oil distillery and other manufacturing are in full operation and if the coal mines are not running it is for want of water, not orders."

The Seth Thomas Clock Company, of Thomaston, Conn., have prepared drawings for the great clock which is to be placed in the tower of the new City Hall at Philadelphia, and which, if completed in accordance with their plans, will be the largest in the world. The bells upon which it will strike the hours and quarters will weigh fifty thousand pounds, and the glass dials, as contemplated, measure twenty-five feet in diameter.

The Junction City Herald is in for prohibition, and suggests the following State ticket for that party in 1887:

For Governor—Fountain T. Fox, Jr., of Louisville.
Lieutenant Governor—Dr. A. T. Henderson, of Carter County.
Superintendent of Public Instruction—Eld. James L. Allen, of Boyle.
Attorney General—Josiah Harris, of Crockett.
Register of the Land Office—Achilles Nelson, of Russell.
Auditor—Colonel J. R. Holmes, of Davison.
Treasurer—R. K. Dyes, of Grant.

The Augusta correspondent of the Louisville Commercial, it seems, can never send that paper any information without drawing very strongly upon his vivid imagination. The following, however sent last Sunday to that journal by the individual referred to, is nothing but a willful misstatement of facts:

The rains and bad weather have set in for the winter, and have put a stop to work on the Mayville and Big Sandy Railroad all along the line. The bridges over the small streams are just in such a fix that if the bad weather continues they will be completely destroyed. At the rate the contractors were making, the road from Mayville to Cincinnati would have been finished by the first of August of next year, but owing to this set-back it is not known when the work will be finished.

Work has not been stopped on the road. The contractors are all making favorable progress. The bridges will not be destroyed, even if the contractors should not be able to do any work till next spring. There are prospects of the road's being completed by the last of next February, as the contract requires, if the bridge work causes no delay, and hardly any one doubts that it will be in operation by the first of next August. The Commercial ought to quit publishing such stuff as the above.

PRIESTS IN SESSION.

One of the Most Important Diocesan Synods Ever Held in America.
New York, Nov. 19.—At the call of Archbishop Corrigan, 400 priests from all over this Catholic archdiocese, assembled in the cathedral in a diocesan synod. In many respects the synod is of greater importance than any ever before held in America. Changes of great importance in ecclesiastical government and discipline will be carried into practical effect. In matters of faith the synod will be silent. Six consultants, whose duty it is to advise officially hereafter with Archbishop Corrigan were appointed. Three rural deans also were appointed. These officers are a new order in the diocese of New York. Their duties lie between those of a bishop and a priest. They are called vicars of the bishop, and it is the duty of such rural dean to look after the ecclesiastical affairs of the diocese, to visit a number of parishes and report their condition to the bishop and to take charge of the funeral, of deceased, and burials, and in many other ways to aid the bishop.
For the new office of defender of the matrimonial bond, Rev. Dr. Burtell, of the Church of Epiphany, of this city, was appointed. It is his duty to defend the validity of the marriage tie in accordance with the belief of the church. That marriage is a sacrament and that divorces should be obtained only for scriptural reasons. Dr. Burtell's task will be to sift all evidence relating to the marriage tie in any particular case, when application is made to him in order that the truth may be arrived at, and also that the burden of proof for breaking the marriage tie may rest on that party who desires to bring about a divorce. In the event of a trial of the same case in a civil court and the granting of a divorce, the ecclesiastical tribunal may pass a decree in accordance with that of the civil court, or may refuse to pass it, and its findings are binding on the conscience of Catholics. Practically Dr. Burtell's task will be in the main to prevent divorces going by default.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—Jack Kilrain had a hard job of knocking Tom Kelly out in four rounds at the Conque last night. In the first round he gave Kelly several severe blows in the stomach which affected his wind, and then he tried his right on his neck. He got there three times, but not hard enough to settle him. In the second round Kilrain hit Kelly several times in the stomach. He was heard for a while and landed it three times, but too high. Kelly got close up as often as possible, and after a short arm rally he clinched and thus gained time. One of the rounds they had a sharp exchange of half-arm blows and Kelly cut Kilrain's left cheek badly, the blood flowing freely.
In the third round Kilrain again made for his opponent's stomach. Kelly got in another right hander on Kilrain's eye and the blood flowed from his cheek to his neck. Kilrain looked wicked as he walked up for the fourth round. He gave Kelly another punch in the stomach, and then went in to finish him. He landed his right and left until he got him rattled and then banged him several times on the neck. The last blow knocked all the fight out of Kelly, who was caught by his seconds and taken to his chair. Mike Cleary, the referee, awarded the fight to Kilrain.

Fatal Fire in Landville, Indiana.

Landville, Ind., Nov. 19.—A fire with terrible and fatal results is reported this morning from the village of Landville, in the north-eastern part of this county, twelve miles from this place. James Johnson, a prosperous farmer, and his family resided a quarter of a mile from the village. This morning the son of Mr. Johnson arose and built a fire, but finding it was out of control, he returned to bed. A half hour later the house was in flames. Johnson and his wife and their two sons escaped in their night clothes.
The two daughters of Johnson, Ella and Minnie, aged respectively eighteen and twenty years, awoke in their upstairs apartments to find themselves surrounded by flames and half suffocated with smoke. They attempted to reach the ground, but escape was shut off. One fell on the stairway and perished there, and the other ran back to her bedroom, fell across the bed and was suffocated. The horror-stricken spectators were unable to render any assistance. The building was completely destroyed. The elder of the young ladies was a teacher in the Landville public school.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla works directly and promptly to purify and enrich the blood, improve the appetite, strengthen the nerves and brace up the system. It is, in the truest sense, an alterative medicine. Every invalid should give it a trial.

If people troubled with colds would take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral before going to church or place of entertainment, they would avoid coughing, greatly to the comfort of both speakers and hearers. Public speakers and singers find that the Pectoral wonderfully increases the power and flexibility of the voice.

Fire at Carlisle.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning, fire was discovered in Grimes' livery stable at Carlisle. Fanned by the heavy gale that was blowing, the flames spread rapidly, and the building and contents were soon destroyed. A carriage factory adjoining was soon ablaze, but the fire company succeeded in getting control of the flames after one end of the building had been destroyed. Eight horses and one cow were burned in the stable. The amount of the loss has not been ascertained. Mr. Grimes and Mr. Wilson Buckler are among the losers.

Mrs. Sallie Hall, after a visit of several weeks to the family of her father, Hon. J. M. Nesbitt, returned to her home in Mayville, Monday. She was accompanied by her brother, Ed. Nesbitt, who will spend the winter with her.—Owingsville Outlook.

The Goose Bone's Predictions.

The Louisville Times is a thorough believer in the goose bone when it comes to predicting the weather. The Times remarks that "the goose bone foretells a very changeable winter, with some of the coldest weather that can be recalled within the memory of old men. The accuracy of the predictions published in the Times last year, based upon the readings of the bone, will be remembered. The terrible weather of the 8th of January was foretold to the day. Forecasting the weather has been an interesting study in all ages, and many means have been employed, but only the goose bone, as a prophet, finds honor in its own land. In the farm houses of Eastern Kentucky it will be found hanging in most every hall, and the farmers are guided by it in putting in and caring for their wheat. The bone said that last winter would be a good one for wheat, and so it proved. This year the promise is even more encouraging, as there will be plenty of snow and the average temperature low enough to keep it from melting.

"Here is the reading of the bone for each of the three winter months. Paste it in your house, and see whether the bone says what it is talking about: December will open clear enough, but the promises of its coming will soon be dispelled. About the 3rd of the month will come falling weather, with rain or snow, and it will be exceedingly disagreeable, with every variety of 'nasty weather,' until about the 18th, when there will follow a few pleasant days. The Christmas holidays will be cold, with most probably snow. The general character of the weather for the month will be falling, and not much will be seen of the sun. The average temperature will be lower than usual.

"January will come in with a bluster—rain, snow and cold—just such weather as makes people feel best at home. Along about the 9th of the month, however, the lines on the bone become indistinct, indicating more pleasant weather. This, however, is only a prelude of what is to follow. About the middle of the month red spots on the bone grow more brilliant, and the dark, greasy tracings spread out over nearly the whole bone, thus indicating very severe weather. Many well-versed in geology say that they never before saw the goose bone so terribly marked. A careful reading predicts a storm about the 16th of the month, followed by some of the coldest weather ever felt in this latitude; and when it is remembered that the mercury in Louisville has been 20° below zero, some idea may be formed as to what to expect. The storm here spoken of may be a few days earlier or later, as it is hard to single out days on the bone, but along about the middle of January great storms and exceedingly cold weather may be looked for. Upon the whole, the month will show much snow and the average temperature will be lower than, probably, we have ever known.

"The first days of February will be cold, and if the little groundhog comes out on the 2nd, he will be in danger of freezing. After that the weather will moderate very decidedly, and the remainder of the month will be changeable, but with no remarkable weather. A kind of nondescript month that will have nothing in particular to distinguish it from other Februaries.

"Here the prophecy of the bone ends, but with the heavy drifts of snow that such a winter will leave in the mountains, and the ground frozen too hard to drink in the water, it is probable that the rivers will wash out the record of flood tides."

A Successful Revival.

A correspondent writing from Campbellsville, Ky., says: "A protracted meeting at the Presbyterian Church has been in progress for about two weeks. It has been, and is now, conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Evans, of Mayville, and Mr. Hopper, of Perryville. The sermons by Dr. Evans have been characterized by great vigor and eloquence. The arguments adduced in defense of the Bible and Christian religion are ornate, logical and conclusive. It is a treat to hear his fervid and eloquent appeals to sinners and sinners are being converted in great numbers. "Mr. Evans is ably seconded by Mr. Hopper, who is not only a fine singer, but his practical and common sense exhortations are very effective.

"The church has been much benefited and revived by these meetings. There have been, I understand, about forty-five additions to the church, with more to follow.

"The community has been much benefited by the labors of these two gentlemen. They should be substantially remunerated for the great good they have accomplished. Let all, with a liberal hand, assist in compensating them for the sacrifices they have made. "From here they go to Bethel, three miles on the Columbia road, where they propose to carry on a series of meetings for a week's time. The services have been impressive and solemn, attracting the orderly attention of the large audiences throughout. The two gentlemen have made a host of friends in this vicinity."

JAMES MCINTYRE, the escaped lunatic who was captured in this city the other day, has been returned to the asylum at Anchorage. The guard who was sent for him says that McIntyre is very violent and dangerous at times. Not long ago he stabbed and seriously wounded a party who happened to be near him in one of his dangerous moods. In his sane moments he realizes his condition, and before the officers here took charge of him, he went to the jail, told Mr. Fitzgerald who was in, and asked to be locked up.

DISASTROUS LANDSLIDE.

MANY PEOPLE INJURED IN A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT AT PITTSBURG.

A Cincinnati Train on the Pan-Handle Buried Beneath Tons of Earth—A Dozen Passengers Injured, Two Fatally—Some Miraculous Escapes.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 19.—At 7 o'clock this morning as the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis railroad limited express from Cincinnati and the west was entering the city, a huge landslide came down from the bluff between the Point bridge and Smithfield street bridge, on the south side of the Monongahela river, crashing into the train.

Three of the sleepers were almost buried out of sight. In one of the sleepers a stone weighing over 1,000 pounds was lodged. Eight of the passengers were seriously injured, one of whom, a gentleman named Bennett, of New York, will probably die. The injured persons were promptly removed to the Monongahela house, the Seventh avenue and the St. James hotels, and are now resting comfortably.

The list of injured that have thus far been learned is as follows: David Amheim, of Pittsburgh, head badly cut, body and bones crushed. It is said that he is injured internally, and is in a precarious condition.

R. A. Bennett, of New York, was wedged under the upper berth of one section. He has two long ugly gashes on his head, one shoulder blade is broken and two ribs. He is thought to be dangerously hurt.

Capt. O. A. Lusk, of Pittsburgh, an ugly cut on head and slightly bruised; not dangerous.

Mrs. Lind, (Miss, of Fort Bayard, N. M., one limb bruised and several cuts on her body.

E. A. Curtis, of New York, was struck in the back and leg by large pieces of rock. He was severely, though not dangerously injured.

J. C. Lippman, of Indianapolis, badly cut about the head and body; not serious.

A young lady from Terre Haute, Ind., whose name was not learned, struck by flying pieces of rock and hurt about the head and body.

Mr. Fowler, of Washington, D. C., slightly hurt about the body. He was within a foot of where the largest rock landed in the sleeper.

In addition to the above names, a number of other passengers were injured before they were slightly injured. These persons hurried out to the different hotels, where they had their bruises dressed. None of them except those mentioned were seriously injured.

Those most seriously hurt were removed to hotels in the vicinity, and everything possible done to alleviate their sufferings. The sleepers that were so badly damaged were the "Alaska," "Williamsport" and "Yarrow." The interiors of each were a complete wreck, while the roofs were caved and the sides torn out of the Cincinnati car. Pullman Conductor T. W. Degroot, who was in the rear car, says the train was running at a speed of ten miles when the crash came. The scene following cannot be described. The passengers who were not injured ran wildly about not knowing where to go, or what to do. One woman rushed into his arms and fainted. No one was badly hurt in his car, but in the two front coaches the injured were quite numerous.

SWALLOWED UP IN FLAMES.

Buffalo, New York, Visited By a Destructive Fire.

BUFFALO, Nov. 19.—A most disastrous fire occurred here at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, in the large building on the corner of Hanover and Prime streets, occupied by G. N. Pierce & Company, cage manufacturers. The fire had gained great headway before the fire department got to work, and spread rapidly, crossing Hanover street to the buildings occupied by N. Wolf, dealer in sheepskin, hides and tallow; A. F. Weppner, wholesale provisions; Sidney Shephard & Company's tinware works, and Wallace Johnson's building which was partially turned some time ago.

The flames spread eastward through the block, and soon reached Buffalo Printing Ink works, and bid fair to go through the block to Main street. The flames were so fierce that the firemen were forced out of Hanover street, and compelled to fight the fire from only one side. The wind blew a perfect gale off the lake, and had it not been for the rain which was falling and aided the efforts of the firemen, the whole block must have been destroyed. At 4:30 the fire was under control, and soon to the buildings also mentioned. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

Sympathy for the Anarchists.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—District Assembly No. 24, Knights of Labor, held a meeting last night and adopted resolutions declaring that the judicial machinery of the criminal court was manipulated unfairly in the recent anarchist trial and that the verdict was the result of a capitalistic and judicial conspiracy. It was resolved that the district assembly use every honorable means to prevent the execution of the sentence pronounced; that a committee wait upon the governor in behalf of the prisoners, and that local assemblies do all in their power in the same behalf.

Convicted of Highway Robbery.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 19.—On the night of November 8, at Pine Bluff, Ark., A. E. Peterson, chief of police at that place, robbed J. F. Thompson, a traveling salesman of Carbondale, Ill., of $140, by boldly making him disgorge at the point of a pistol. Thompson reported the crime to the mayor, who promptly suspended Peterson. At his trial yesterday Peterson was convicted of highway robbery, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Security of U. S. in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 19.—Cleveland is threatened with a coal famine, and that at a time when a cold wave is predicted by the weather bureau. The tons of hard coal in the hands of dealers could almost be counted on one's fingers. The supply of hard coal is entirely cut off and dealers are in a severe straits. Dealers were today trying to get coal from each other, but none was to be had. The cause of the difficulty is lack of transportation.

Suffering on the Sea.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Nov. 19.—The Peter Head whaler Catharine, Capt. Benzie, collapsed early in October. The crew, consisting of 12 men, were brought here by the steamship Republic after ten days and nights exposure in open boats under an Arctic sky.

REMARKABLE REMEDY.

A Pistol Wound Cures a Case of Paralysis of Over Ten Years Duration.

Brownsville, Mich., Nov. 19.—In 1879 Mrs. Ada Martin, of this place, fractured her left leg and paralysis of the member followed, with loss of speech. She has not been able to use the limb since, or to speak until yesterday, when in a remarkable way, she recovered the use of both leg and voice. Mrs. Martin, during her affliction, devoted her time to the construction of crays quilts, had been the recipient of several patches from Presidents Garfield, Arthur and Hayes. As Secretary she received a patch with the compliments of President Cleveland, and the pleasure of the event induced her to attempt to rise. Her son's revolver lay on a stand near by, and was jammed off its falling, causing the revolver to be discharged. The ball passed through the invalid's paralyzed leg. Mrs. Martin's husband, Mr. J. W. Martin, and her limb will be useful after the bullet wound is healed.
